SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' TRAINING CLASS

LESSON XLIX.

There is no Sunday school lesson in this week's readings.

DAILY MANNA.

Sunday, November 18.—The women come to embalm him. Mt. 28:1; Mk. 16:1-3; Lk. 24:1; Ju. 20:1ab.
Monday, Nov. 19.—Mary Magdalene sees the stone taken away and returns to tell the disciples, Mk. 16:4; Lk. 24:2; Ju. 20:11, 2.
Tuesday, Nov. 20.—The angel appears to the other women and they depart. Mt. 28:5-8; Mk. 16:5-8; Lk. 24:3-8.
Wednesday, Nov. 21.—Peter and John come to see and return. Lk. 24:12, 24; Ju. 20:3-10.
Thursday, Nov. 22.—Mary Magdalene sees first the two angels in the tomb, afterwards she sees Christ, Mk. 16:9; Ju. 20:11-11.
Friday, Nov. 23.—Christ appears to the other women. Mt. 28:9, 10.
Saturday, Nov. 24.—Report of the guard; the guard bribed. Mt. 28:11-15.

HELPS TO STUDY.

Early in the morning, on the first day of the week, these women are on their way to complete the embalming of Christ's body. At clear dawn Mary Magdalene arrives at the tomb first. She sees the stone rolled away. She takes no time to investigate but returns at once to tell the apostles of this fact. She returns by another street than the one from which the other women are coming and misses them. The other women, while Magdalene has returned to tell some of the disciples, come to the sepulchre. An angel appears to them and tells them not to fear, that he knows they seek Jesus, that he is not here but risen. He then invited them to come and see the vacant tomb and then go and tell the disciples. Peter and John came and made their investigation and returned to the city. Doubtless soon after they left Mary Magdalene returned to the tomb. She stooped down and looked in and saw two angels, one at the head and one at the feet of where the body of Jesus lay. They asked her why she wept; she told them that some one had taken her Lord and she knew not where they have laid him. She then raised up and as she turned saw Jesus. Then occurred the conversation between him and her. Immediately afterward he appeared to the other women as they were making their way back to the city. After the resurrection there were some remarkable features about Christ's body. He seemed to have the power of transporting himself from one place to another immediately. He could enter houses when the doors were all closed and vanish out of their sight as a perfectly spiritual being. These no doubt are the characteristics of the spiritual body which he seemed to possess after his resurrection.

In the meantime the guard went and reported the resurrection of Christ. The Jewish rulers saw that this would never do, therefore they bribed the guard to say that the disciples came and stole him while they slept. This is one of the most unreasonable reports that ever was published on a Roman guard.

METHODS IN TEACHING.

Illustration—Illustrate means "to light up." Whatever will illuminate or "light up" the lesson is an illustration. There are four uses of illustration. 1. They attract attention. A light brought in a dark room, or a star shining in the sky, at once draws to it every eye. So the illustrations of the lessons win attention to its teachings. The ear is quickened to interest by a story; the eye is arrested by the picture or the chalk mark. Nothing awakens and retains the interest more than the illustration whether heard or seen. 2. They quicken the apprehension. In a dark room we may be informed concerning the place and form of every object. But how all our ideas are changed at the instant when a light is introduced, enabling us to see its contents. 3. They aid the memory. The meteor which you saw flashing in the sky at night is remembered long after the one about which you read has been forgotten. You remember a sermon, not so much by its text or its thoughts, but by its illustrations. 4. They awaken the conscience. How many have been aroused to conviction of sin by the parable of the prodigal son; and what is that but an illustration? Mr. Moody's stories have sent the truth home as deeply as his exhortations.

There are four classes of illustration. 1. Those which depend upon the sight and derive their interest from the pupil's delight in seeing. Such are maps, pictures, diagrams, etc., and when drawn in the presence of the scholars, though ever so rudely sketched, they have an increased interest and power. 2. Those which depend upon the imagination. In childhood this faculty is especially strong, for to them all the world is new and strange. To this class of illustrations belong "word pictures," imaginary scenes, etc., as presentations of the thought in the lesson.

3. Those which depend upon comparison. To see resemblance in things different, or the correspondence between the outward and the spiritual is as old as the parable of the sower and the miracle of the loaves. 4. Those which depend upon knowledge. Children are eager to know. History, science, art, and indeed every department of knowledge will furnish illustrations of spiritual truth.

Use illustrations only in the line of the teaching. Never use an illustration or tell a story for the sake of the illustration or story, but always to impress a truth. Never let the illustration be the more prominent part, but give prominence to the truth you are teaching and let the illustration throw light on that truth. Encourage the pupils to find incidents, illustrations, etc., that will clarify and enliven the lessons taught.

THE FRENCH HUSBAND.

Always, as a Rule, Anxious to Do the Agreeable Thing.

The French husband has a faculty that amounts almost to a genius for bestowing the delicate attentions which cost little except the exercise of a modicum of tact and thoughtfulness, but which carry joy to every true woman's heart. He not only thinks to take home to her often (in the absence of the means to make a larger offering) a ten cent bunch of violets, pinks or roses from the flower market or the itinerant flower vender's barrow on his route, but he presents them gallantly with the compliment and the caress the occasion calls for, and this makes them confer a pleasure out of all proportion to their intrinsic worth.

He remembers her birthday or fete day with a potted plant, a bit of game, a box of bonbons, a cake from the pastry cook's or a bottle of good wine.
He is marvelously fertile in expedients for making the time pass quickly and agreeably for her. He has a thousand amusing and successful devices for helping her to renew her youth. He projects unique and joyous Sunday and holiday excursions. He improvises dainty little banquets. He is a past master especially in the art of conjuring up amiable mysteries and preparing charming little surprises. And in all these trivial enterprises he vindic-ates the old French theory that true courtesy consists in taking a certain amount of pains to so order our words and our manners that others "be content with us and with themselves."

The American husband is particularly solicitous to do the proper thing; the French husband to do the agreeable thing.—Independent.

WATER IN TURKEY.

Must Meet Many Conditions to Be a Perfect Beverage.

"Turks are extremely particular," writes a traveler, "in regard to the quality of the water they drink and are willing to be at much trouble and expense to obtain water of the kind they prefer. To be a perfect beverage water must issue from a rock, fall from a height, be of medium temperature, flow rapidly and copiously, taste sweet, spring in high and lonely ground and run from south to north or from east to west. The excellence of any water is accordingly determined by the number of these conditions it fulfills. It is remarkable how much pleasure Turks find in visiting a famous spring in the country, to spend the whole day beside it under the shade of trees, doing little else than drink carafe after carafe of the water as the elixir of life. Resorts of this description abound on the shores and in the valleys of the upper Bos-porus under such names as the Water of Life, the Silver Water, the Water Under the Chestnut Tree, the Water Beside the Hazels. The spectacle of the great gatherings there on Fridays, arrayed in bridal colors, seated tier above tier on the terraced platforms built against the green slope of the hill, the women above, the men below, all in the deep shade of the branches meeting overhead, forms a picture beyond a painter's power to reproduce.—Chicago News.

Hot Drinks For Thirst.

It is a mistake to suppose that cold drinks are necessary to relieve thirst.
Very cold drinks, as a rule, increase the feverish condition of the mouth and stomach and so create thirst. Experience shows it to be a fact that hot drinks relieve the thirst and cool off the body when it is in an abnormally heated condition better than ice cold drinks. It is far better and safer to avoid the use of drinks below 60 degrees. In fact, a higher temperature is to be preferred, and those who are much troubled with thirst will do well to try the advantages to be derived from hot drinks instead of cold fluids, to which they have been accustomed.
Hot drinks also have the advantage of aiding digestion instead of causing debility of the stomach and bowels.

The Harshness of Orators.

American political orators are often charged with being unduly harsh to the other side. The following extract from a speech of the late Earl of Shaftesbury, published in his memoirs, shows that if our stump speakers exhibit harshness they come honestly by it. The noble earl thus described and propheesied: "When Gladstone runs down a steep place, his immense majority, like the pigs in Scripture, but hoping for a better issue, will go with him, roaring in grunts of exultation."
—Boston Transcript.

Noah's Advantage.

Mrs. Noah was complaining that her clothes looked as if they had come out of the ark.
"On the contrary," returned her spouse, "they have just come across the water."

Herewith he congratulated himself on the cheapness of imported gowns.— New York Sun.

As the Boy Saw It.

An Englishman tells the story of a boy who saw an exceedingly bowlegged man standing in front of a hot fire.
Finally he could restrain himself no longer and said, "Hey, mister, you'd better get away from there; you're warpin'."

Pollitense.

The greatest thing in the world is pollitense. And no schooling is necessary to be agreeable. Simply have a little consideration for others and be quiet and modest.—Atchison Globe.

There is no virtue in the Sunday that makes children say, "I wish it was Monday!"

MR. JAMES CHIMPAN- ZEE'S PICTURE

"Have you heard the news?" asked Joe Baboon of Jim Chimpanzee.
"No; what is it?" inquired Jim.
"Why, a photographer has come to town."
"And what is a photographer?" asked Jim.
"A man who takes pictures."
"Will he take my picture?" inquired Jim.
"Of course he will," answered Joe.
"But what on earth do you want your picture taken for?"
"To send to my sweetheart," said Jim, blushing to the end of his tail.

HE LOOKED PLEASANT.

"Gracious!" exclaimed Joe. "You will frighten the poor girl out of her wits."

But Jim wanted the picture, and the very next day he went down to the photographer's place.

"Now, sit real still and look pleasant," said the photographer.

Jim sat as still as he could and looked as pleasant as he ever did in his life. The photographer touched the button, and the picture was made.

The first mail carried one of the pictures to Jim's girl.

"She will be pleased with that, I know," declared Jim. "My, I do look handsome in that picture!"

Well, in a few days Mr. Chimpanzee got a letter from his sweetheart, and this is the letter:

Mr. James Chimpanzee, 711 Zulu Jungle, Zambaza Land:

Dear Sir—I never knew what a perfect fright you were until I got your photograph. It will be impossible for me to marry you. Papa says please keep away from the house. Sincerely, CATHERINE ORANG-OUTANG.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Innocent Elephant

Jumbo was so innocent, so guileless and unsuspecting that if you told him his tail was on in front he would get mixed and be tempted to believe it.
He was also absentminded.

"Why," said the monkey, "the other day I told him that he was a fire engine and that his trunk was the hose, and he never knew the difference and squirted water all over the place till the keeper came and pounded him."

"Let's have some fun with him now," suggested the parrot.

"By the way," said Jumbo absently,
"who is that peculiar looking fellow with the straw sticking out of his chin, by the post there?"

"Why, that's a 'Hey, Rube,'" said the parrot.

"A hay Rube?" asked Jumbo.

"Yes, a 'Hey, Rube.' If you'd been in the circus longer you'd have known what a 'Hey, Rube,' is."

"Is it good to eat?" queried the innocent one.

"Most assuredly," said the monkey.

AROUND THE TENT HE TORE

"He ought to be good," thought Jumbo, "if he's hay."

He looked longingly at the hay with the grassy whiskers.

"When no one is looking I will eat him," he said.

By and by the chance came. Jumbo stole up close to the farmer, who was looking intently at the lady bareback rider. Reaching out his long trunk, he wound it about the "Hey, Rube," threw back his big head, opened his little mouth and dropped the astonished "Rube" into it.

But, oh, how different it seemed from the hay he had been used to! It kicked and struggled; it hurt his jaws; it choked him. He felt as the whole must when he had Jonah inside. He must get rid of it at once.

Around the tent he tore, looking for a way out, while the feet of his novel dinner dangled from his lips, and the people scrambled to get out of the way.
After a deal of striving he broke through the tent and managed to cough his unwilling meal out on the grass sod.

He never heard the end of his mistake. All of which shows, 3rd, that there are different meanings to the same word.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
